

BRENDA GALLAGHER - Introduction

Brenda has been curious about nature from a very young age. She was fortunate to have Grandparents and parents that introduced her to the wonders of our natural world and the enjoyment of gardening. Since then, Brenda has developed a passion, and a deep respect for nature.

She is a graduate of both Sault College and the University of Guelph, including programs in Forestry, Fish and Wildlife, Horticulture and Agriculture. Currently, Brenda is a Forestry Technician and Vegetation Specialist within the Upper Thames River Conservation Authority.

She conducts interpretive tours of many natural areas in the London area for various groups. She has been studying medicinal plants for over 20 years, is an organic vegetable and herb gardener, as well as a nature photographer.
